More than a venue - a place to (re)build community and a way of living that sustains our social fabric.

About Our Venues

Fresh Ground Café - 256 King St. E. Kitchener

This plant-filled oasis is located east of Frederick St. in downtown Kitchener, steps away from the Kitchener Market and beside Recycles Cycles (another project of The Working Centre). It holds up to 50 people, and includes a range of audio-visual equipment, perfect for your presentations, open mic or stand-up comedy events, wedding showers, and more.

Queen Street Commons Café - 43 Queen St. S. Kitchener

The 'Commons' has been the kind of gathering place that is central to community vitality since 2006. The renovated café offers a bright and homey space, with capacity for 90 people. This larger space includes a stage and audio-visual equipment for concerts, film screenings, retreats, workshops and more.

As not-for-profit projects, both venues are interconnected with our other work in employment, housing and shelter, and our integrated street outreach services. Each project is made possible by the contributions of volunteers and committed team members. You will find people working, making connections, volunteering, and discovering a welcoming place to land amongst community. Our café team builds regenerative practices in our packaging, preparation and catering options, prioritizing seasonal and locally sourced items and plant-based recipes. Catering is available in both locations. See the next pages for basic rental packages and catering options for you to choose from.
